NOTICE TO THE INHABITANTS OF NEW MEXICO.

The Surveyor General of New Mexico, by an act of Congress approved on the 22nd July 1854, is required to "make a full report on all such claims as originated 'before the cession of the Territory to the United States' by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo of 1848, denoting the various grades of title with his decision thereon as to the validity or invalidity of each of the same under the 'sworn laws' and customs of the country before cession 'to the United States.'—And he is also required to make a report in regard to all 'Pueblos' existing in the Territory, showing the extent and locality of each, stating the number of inhabitants in the said Pueblos respectively, and the nature of their titles to the land. Such report to be made according to the form which may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, which report shall be laid before Congress for such action thereon as may be deemed just and proper with a view to confirm bona fide grants and give full effect to the Treaty of 1848, between the United States and Mexico.

Claims in every case will be required to file a written notice, setting forth the name of the 'present claimant,' name of 'original claimant'—nature of claim, whether inchoate or perfect—its date—from what authority the original title was derived—with a reference to the evidence of the power and authority under which the granting officer may have acted—quantity claimed, locality, title and extent of conflicting claims, if any, with reference to the documentary evidence and testimony relied upon to establish the claim, and to show transfer of right from the 'original grantee' to the present claimant."

Every claimant will also be required to furnish an authentic plat of Survey, if a survey has been executed, or other evidence, showing the precise bounds and extent of the tract claimed.

To enable the Surveyor General to execute the duty thus imposed on him, by law, he has to request all those individuals who claimed lands in New Mexico before the treaty of 1848, to produce the vouchers of such claims at this office at Santa Fe, as soon as possible.

TO DONATION CLAIMANTS.

The act of Congress, above referred to, grants 160 acres of land to every white male citizen of the United States, or every white male above the age of 21 years, who has declared his intention to become a citizen, now residing in New Mexico; and who was so residing prior to 1st January 1833, and to every white male citizen of the United States, and to every white male above the age of 21 years, who has declared his intention to become a citizen, who was residing in the Territory on the 1st January 1833, or who shall remove to and settle here at any time prior to the 1st January 1858 the same law also grants 160 acres of public land. No claim to any such donation is valid unless the claimant has or shall be settled on, and cultivated for five successive years; and to such donation claim is allowed to interfere in any manner with any claim recognized by the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo.

All individuals claiming the benefit of such donation will find it to their interest to give the earliest possible information to the Surveyor General, as to the localities of their settlements in order to enable him to direct his surveying operations accordingly. The localities in each county shall be described as distinctly as possible in reference to any and all notable objects in the vicinity.

Given under my hand at my office at Santa Fe this 15 day of Jan. A. D. 1855.

WM. PELHAM,

Surveyor General of New Mexico.

Santa Fe, Jan. 27, 1855.—1534.

Plagiarism of "El Gringo."

In looking the other day over some old numbers of the Santa Fe Gazette, we came across an editorial article which we immediately recognized as having seen almost verbatim in Mr. Davis' book, "El Gringo." We compared the two, and detected the plagiarism. We found that the author had actually been drawing upon the columns of this paper for his very witty account of an incident of the rainy season of 1854. This discovery forcibly reminded us of the statement of our correspondent C. P. C., published on the 27th of June last, that a large proportion of the book was taken, without the proper acknowledgment, from a volume in the possession of a gentleman at Fort Defiance, and the plagiarism in this instance goes far towards establishing the correctness of our correspondent's statement. The following are the original from the Gazette and its counterpart from "El Gringo."

[From the Santa Fe Gazette of July 15, 1854.]

"The flood did not even spare the printer," but made an unceremonious and unwelcome entry into our sanctum. It began to come through the roof in drops, but soon increased to the size of large streams, which for hours kept up a steady running. We resolved ourselves into a water-committee of one to attend upon it, and mustered into service buckets, tubs, and various other articles to catch the water in. Before we went to bed we carried out nearly a barrel; but, the storm continuing and the water increasing, we ceased our efforts and 'let her rip.' During the night we dreamed of water works, 'raging canals' and storms by sea and land; and when we awoke in the morning found our room in fine boating condition. We made our escape without accident by coasting around the walls, and sought safer quarters."

"The flood of water failed to spare my premises, but made an unceremonious entry into my quarters in the dead hour of night, and came with a hearty good will that showed that it neither stood upon ceremony nor was a respecter of persons. In the first place with a little show of modesty it insinuated itself through my roof in drops, probably to try my temper for ducking, but it soon increased into large streams, and kept up a steady running the live-long night. I immediately resolved myself into a water-committee of one to attend upon the leakage, and mustered in to service tubs, buckets, and various other articles to catch the water in. In a short time I carried out nearly a barrel; but the storm continuing and the water increasing I ceased my efforts to bail and quietly laid me down to sleep. My sleep during the balance of the night was disturbed by dreams of water-works, and storms by sea and land; and when I awoke in the morning I found my room in good boating order, I made my escape by coasting round the wall and sought safety in drier quarters."

A correspondent at El Paso—for whose communication we regret that we have no room—writes us that the citizens of Franklin, the town on this side of the river, had been compelled to form themselves into a vigilance committee for the purpose of ridding the community of a notorious outlaw and desperado by the name of Sam Elder, but better known by the cognomen of Sam Smotherface—a character many of the people of Albuquerque and this city will remember as a thieving pest among them several years ago. The committee having been reliably informed of the villain's declared intention to murder a Mexican woman, stationed a guard around her residence at night, who about two or three hours before the dawn of day, saw him approaching, in a stooping attitude, with his rifle in hand and cocked. The sentinels waited until he had, thus sneaking, come within ten or fifteen feet of them, when they fired—and the assassin fell riddled with shot and bullets. He however lived about two hours, continuing, up to almost the very moment of his last breath, to heap curses upon the guard for what he called a cowardly act. As if conscious, however, of the merited atonement that had thus been the consequence of his crimes, his last words to his hearers were the following: Forewell: may the world smile more propitiously upon you than it has upon me!

Additional Extracts from "El Gringo."

Immediately under our Editorial heading on the Spanish side we have made some further extracts from the libellous book written by Mr. Davis, President of the Peña Blanca Baird Convention. We deem it unnecessary now to comment upon "El Gringo" or these extracts therefrom further than we have done in previous numbers. They speak for themselves: they bear their own comment to the hearts of the New Mexican people, American and Mexican. We desire for the present only to remind our fellow-citizens that they were written by W. W. H. Davis, the chosen President of the convention which nominated and recommended Judge Baird (otherwise the "Chino Triano") to the people of this Territory for Delegate to Congress in place of Hon. Miguel Antonio Otero. We desire only to remind them not only of the great injustice but also of the great injury which the book containing these extracts is working in the United States, and wherever else it may be read, against the institutions, the interests and the very people of New Mexico—a land which, so far from being what the President of the Baird convention represents her in his book, is a Territory interesting in history, immense in resources and great in prospect.

LETTER FROM MR. HUBBELL

BERNALILLO, July 25, 1857.

EDITORS OF THE SANTA FE GAZETTE:—

In "El Democrat" of the 23rd instant, a letter is published over the initials of my name which purports to have been taken from the "New York Daily Times" of November 19th 1853. It is also charged that the letter in question was addressed by me to my brother. For the present I have only to state in reference to the matter, that I have never written any letter to any person whatever against the character of New Mexico, and have written no communication whatever, for any paper journal, or periodical published in the States or elsewhere, except the Santa Fe Gazette. I have never seen the New York Times above alluded to, and hence do not know whether said letter is a verbatim copy of the original as published or whether it is the production of some malicious and cowardly scoundrels of the city of Santa Fe. If it be a verbatim copy from the Times, the original must be on file in that office, and I challenge the Editor of the "Democrat" or any other person to produce a letter of mine, either private or public, that corresponds on the
